

Redmen end brief winning streak

by JOHN SKINNER

The thirst for victory that has parched the throats of Redmen for five straight games this season was finally quenched Saturday in Molson Stadium as the McGill squad, behind the poised quarterbacking of Rich Ripstein, upset the heavily-favoured Varsity Blues 17-14.

The same Toronto team will take on Western Mustangs for the league title in London, Ont. next Saturday. 'Stangs dumped Queen's Golden Gaels in London 26-12 and wound up the season with a 5 and 1 record. Varsity, by virtue of its win over Western last week, is entitled to meet Mustangs in the playoff.

Redmen played 60 minutes of solid ball in downing the Blues. They built up a 15-2 lead in the first half and hung on for the win. Their first major came on a picture pass play from Ripstein to end Jim Dickie. Dickie made a great grab on the 23-yard pitch into the end zone, eluding two defenders.

The other McGill touchdown was one of the most interesting seen here in some time. Quarterback Bryce Taylor fumbled on the Varsity 52 and Redmen halfback Bob Berke booted the ball along the ground into the end zone where big tackle Dick Feidler fell on it for the major.

Brian Pilgrim converted both touchdowns and kicked two singles, and Ripstein rounded out the McGill scoring with a fourth-quarter single.

Varsity touchdowns came from Taylor on a keep from the one-yard line after Blues had marched 89 yards in 10 plays and halfback Gerry Sternberg who caught a 34-yard TD strike late in the fourth quarter. Toronto defensive star Ranny Parker dumped Ripstein in the end zone in the second quarter for the other two points.

Howlett, Berke, Feidler star

Bursting fullback Peter Howlett was the game's rushing leader with 104 yards in 19 carries. His prodigious yardage production put him in second place in league rushing behind Western's Art Froese. Howlett has 413 yards, Queen's Heino Lilles is third with 384 yards, and Sternberg is fourth with 379.

Berke and Feidler were the defensive bright lights of the day. Both made more than their share of tackles and teamed up for Redmen's second touchdown.

As usual, coach Tom Mooney had several men going two ways. Feidler, Howlett, Don Taylor, Wayne Snowman, Mike Bunting, Murray Orlando and Eric Walter all saw double duty. Walter picked up 43 yards on 11 carries from the halfback spot.

Others to pin stars on: Jim Dickie made a couple of sparkling catches and got himself a touchdown for his efforts. Wade Kenny, Brian Rose, and Ray Lawson were tigers on defence with Kenny recording an interception, and Lawson and Rose leading the blitzing McGill line. In the offensive backfield, Rick Satin and Ripstein shone for the Red-shirts.

Daily policy subject of special meeting

A special meeting of the Students' Society will be held today at 1 pm in the Union Ballroom to discuss the Daily. The meeting is being called as the result of a petition submitted to President Sharon Sholzberg by 317 members of the Students' Society.

The students submitted the petition despite the Students' Council's decision October 27 to accept the Daily Managing Board's policy statement.

The petition reads:

Whereas the Editor-in-Chief of the McGill Daily has consistently used the Daily for his extreme political purposes; and

Whereas the traditional student activities such as Blood Drive no longer get adequate space in the Daily; and

Whereas the Daily no longer represents the vast majority of the members of the McGill Students' Society;

We resolve that the Editor-in-Chief of the McGill Daily, Patrick D. MacFadden, be asked to resign.

Nossal on SE Asia:

China's influence declining

by VIVIAN WISEMAN

Red China's influence in Southeast Asia is waning", said Frederick Nossal in a speech on "Chinese Communist Involvement in Southeast Asia".

Speaking to Sir George Williams University's 7th Annual Seminar on International Affairs, he said, "The Chinese have lost ground tremendously because the Peking regime made grave mistakes in its foreign policy of the past few years."

Nossal, a newspaper correspondent and author of Dateline Peking, reported from China and Hong Kong from 1959-60, and visited Japan, Malaya, Laos, South Vietnam, Thailand and Singapore between 1960-62.

Nossal said that a terrific blow was struck to Chinese prestige when the Afro-Asian Conference was cancelled. They tried to dominate the Conference, "and succeeded only in making enemies."

The Chinese, Nossal said, are determined to perpetrate the myth of Afro-Asian supremacy over all white westerners, including the Russians. China tried to exclude the USSR from the Conference and this was the main cause of the break-up of the planned congress.

He then discussed "the Chinese debacle in the India-Pakistan war." He recently spent several weeks in India, covering the dispute over Kashmir. He said, "China's ultimatum to India, designed to prolong the India-Pakistan conflict, fizzled because of the United States' threat to withdraw aid." A cease-fire was then declared.

Nossal said, "The West must continue to offset Chinese influence by educating the hungry world to fight against poverty and disease."

"The US should re-examine its policy in South Vietnam. It should send civilians — doctors, nurses, teachers and technicians — behind enemy lines to improve the condition of the people, instead of pouring in more military power." He asked, "How can you defend western civilisation by dropping a palm on helpless villages?"

U de M student quits CYC in protest of Viet Nam policy

by DON McPHERSON

Michel Forand, a Université de Montréal student who was one of Prime Minister Pearson's ten original appointments to the organisational committee of the Company of Young Canadians, has resigned from the committee because of Canada's Viet Nam policy.

Forand, in his letter of resignation to Mr. Pearson, wrote: "By supporting the policy of the American government in Viet Nam, your government undermines the moral foundation of the Company of Young Canadians."

"If I accepted your invitation last May, it was in the hope that I would be able to participate in the elaboration of an agency which would eventually play a role in the economic and social development of Canada and foreign countries."

"This hope rested on the belief that all the efforts of your government were oriented towards objectives of human solidarity."

"The agreement which you have shown with the policy of the American government regarding Viet Nam demonstrates to me that this belief was unjustified."

Varied reactions were received from campus groups connected with CYC.

Rev. Roger Balk, General Secretary of the Student Christian Movement and an advisor of the McGill branch of Canadian University Service Overseas (CUSO), said he did not understand Forand's action. He said he saw "no relationship between the organising committee of CYC and Viet Nam. Forand is expressing his dissatisfaction with one part of the Liberal government by resigning from another part."

The SCM is one of several national bodies that were consulted by the Prime Minister in order to organise the CYC.

HOT SEAT? John Turner, Liberal candidate in St. Lawrence-St. George was questioned last Friday by student leaders on several topics including free education.

Willmott says cold war categories are not applicable to Cambodia

by MARTY FREEMAN

Cold war categories are inappropriate in the understanding of Cambodia," Professor William Willmott told delegates of Sir George Williams' Conference on International Affairs Friday.

Professor Willmott, an anthropologist and specialist in Asian studies at the University of British Columbia and a McGill graduate, said that foreign policy which does not show an understanding of local conditions is disastrous.

Cambodian policies can only be explained by a preoccupation with national unity and integrity, which means independence from Viet Nam and Thailand, its two traditional enemies, Professor Willmott explained.

"The tragedy of Cambodia," he claimed, "is that, in the past decade, its official neutrality has moved from pro-Western to pro-Chinese. This has largely been the fault of American policies."

The US will guarantee a state's borders only from Communist aggression and Cambodia's two enemies are both firmly in the American camp. However, Professor Willmott said, Cambodia will remain neutral as long as possible.

Under Norodom Sihanouk, the country has been the most stable in Southeast Asia during the past ten years, Professor Willmott said. Although Sihanouk has received bad press coverage in the West, he is "a brilliant and tireless ruler, totally devoted to his people."

Sihanouk has attempted to reform Cambodia according to the principles of Buddhist Socialism, which means democratising the economic and social structures of the country without a class struggle. Professor Willmott said that thus far he has enjoyed considerable success.

"It is absurd to speak of any development in Southeast Asia other than socialism," Professor Willmott said.

He elaborated on the various accomplishments of Sihanouk's government in the fields of education and health. Large investment is possible because Cambodia does not suffer from food shortages, he said.

In the political arena Sihanouk has destroyed the right and left wings of Cambodia's single party and thus assured national unity, Professor Willmott said. At the same time he has instituted several reforms such as the nationalisation of banks and of foreign trade.

"Where else in the world would you find a youth movement called 'Jeunesse Socialiste Royale'?" Professor Willmott asked.

He also explained that Cambodian independence was the result of military conflict but of "a personal crusade by Sihanouk". For

Principal is opposed to International House

Principal Dr. H. Locke Robertson, speaking at the International Festival's closing banquet, declared himself opposed to the establishment of an International House at this time.

Dr. Robertson said that he was in favour of providing facilities for foreign and local students to become acquainted, but that the establishment of an International House would be self-defeating.

He said that the university had looked into the idea, but that the experiences of some Midwestern United States universities had been that such facilities tend to isolate foreign students from the community and the rest of the student body.

As an alternative, Dr. Robertson said, McGill has instituted a programme to board foreign students with Montreal families. He also cited the international aspects of the teaching staff and the curriculum at the university as contributing to the international student's feeling of belonging.

Dr. Robertson also recommended that the Students' Society investigate the possibility of providing facilities in the Union for the social activities of foreign students.

Turner on hot seat

Free education, but not now

by BOB SCOTT

At a meeting of the Liberal Club Friday, John N. Turner, Liberal candidate in St. Lawrence-St. George, said that although he believed in free education it could not be realised in the near future.

Turner was questioned by a panel consisting of Sharon Sholzberg, President of the Students' Society, Ken Cabatoff, Vice-President for External Affairs, and Patrick MacFadden, Editor-in-Chief of the McGill Daily.

Miss Sholzberg asked if he believed that Student Loans were the answer in providing free education for everyone. Turner said that he had fought for the Loan Bill in Parliament but that bursaries and loans are only interim measures.

Turner said that he believed in free education but that certain things must be kept in mind. He said that university standards would have to be maintained and possibly raised since there would be many more applications than the universities could accommodate.

Free education cannot be obtained immediately, he continued, because of other government programmes which have priority.

He said that students who have their education financed by the government should have a reciprocal duty to repay by working for a year or two in underdeveloped countries.

Turner said that students should be careful in the methods they use to obtain free education in order not to jeopardise the good-will of the public.

Miss Sholzberg asked how the Liberal Party could be the 'party of the future' when it seems that students are losing faith in the two established parties, as seen by the fact that the NDP won last year's Model Parliament election at McGill.

Turner did not think that this result was indicative of the feelings of most college students and said that the Liberals had won 70% of the Model Parliament elections held at Canadian colleges.

When asked by MacFadden where war was most likely to break out, Turner said that war would probably come when China meets an America that is unwilling to negotiate.

Turner has been in Parliament for three years and is running for election for the third time.

Taylor claims:

Majority has no voice

Professor Charles Taylor, NDP candidate in Mount Royal, said at a windup rally Friday that only a small sector of the Canadian population has been represented in past governments.

Professor Taylor described the leadership and policies of both parties as being unrepresentative of the general population. He feels that this is the basis of the problem of Canadian unity.

The people feel that they are not being properly represented and that "the country does not reflect them," Professor Taylor said that the NDP offers a good alternative to those who feel alienated by the two major parties.

In a question period which followed, Professor Taylor said that Gérard Pelletier and Pierre Elliott-Trudeau made a "terribly naive mistake" in joining the Liberal Party. He feels that even if they are successful in the election they will have no power in the Party.

Monique Ferron and Professor C.G. Gifford, two other local NDP candidates also spoke at the rally. A fourth candidate, Jeff Adams, did not show up as scheduled.

NOVEMBER 9, 1969

I wonder if we are a trifle too calm but then perhaps it is relative. I wonder who will win but I don't care — it's a bore. I wonder if the angels will be able to combat corruption but if we have it here in idealism what can we expect of them? Thank to staff for helping to produce what I hope will not be the end of my losing streak — sue, danny, henry, Vivian, bob, marly, don, bill, kasbar, Lawrence and his sporty thieves, welcome to Irwin, Jeanne and Judy guess there's no use to wonder.

A non-event

It is highly unlikely that many Canadians will be holding their breath awaiting the outcome of today's fatuous exercise. The real issues have been buried under a mass of insipidated waffle by the leaders of the two old line parties. One of them, Mr. Diefenbaker, is clearly punchdrunk and will have to be put away. There is something tragic about this man, feeling his way around the walls of various old homesteads like someone in a bad melodrama, bleating plaintively for Elmer and the days long gone by, crowing with the childishly manic wistfulness of a Lear while the party stalwarts prop him up behind the microphone for one last lone charismatic hoot.

Of Mr. Pearson little can be said except to note that the man is unfit to lead a political party. The operative word here is banal; for those who heard his convocation address at McGill last summer, there will be little need to explain any further. And the banality has been mixed in recent weeks with the most absurd kind of petulance.

The various branches of Social Credit represent a throwback to a pre-political age. The movement is opportunist, infiltrated by the moral recrimination disease, and has the added bonus of a strong dash of racism.

Mr. Douglas ran a campaign centred round the burning question of the extent to which detergent packets were filled or not filled. It is an open secret that the party has played down the question of foreign policy in favour of a kind of shadow boxing about consumer goods. The Baptist radical has become the Martin Luther of the supermarkets.

Much, then, as we would dearly love to exercise our prerogative and suggest a worthy course of action, we find little to commend in the party platforms. We suggest that rather than voting, a brisk walk on the mountain would be in order at this time.

And another...

The idea that today's open meeting can unseat the Daily editor is based on serious misconceptions both about the powers vested in the Students' Society under the present constitution, and about the relationship of the Daily to the Students' Council and, ultimately, to the Students' Society.

To the best of our knowledge, the only authority vested directly in the students is the right to amend by referendum the Students' Society constitution (Article VIII, 6). For while "the Students' Society is an association of students formed to exercise control of the student activities" (Art. II), "the governing authority of the Students' Society" is "vested in the Students' Council" (Art. VIII, 1). While the Society may, at its own or the president's discretion, hold meetings to discuss any matters of interest to it, the decisions made at these meetings constitutionally are without authority. Certainly, any motions passed by the Society will have a certain amount of influence on the Students' Council. On the other hand, these motions have absolutely no legal force.

The Students' Society is a representative, not a direct democracy. This is eminently sensible. Three hundred students, a Students' Society quorum, represent 2.5 per cent of the student body. The Students' Council, elected by the whole of the Students' Society, represents the whole of the student body. This quorum of 300 should not, and in fact does not, have the power to over-rule the representatives of the students. On page 36 of the student Handbook it is said that "the Council is responsible to the students through bi-annual open meetings and referendums of the Students' Society". Constitutionally, this simply is not so. Whoever wrote this interpretive analysis of the constitution had not read it very closely.

The second area of confusion involves the question of who, precisely, is responsible for the Daily. The governing authority of the Students' Society is vested in Council. Even more explicitly, "The Students' Council shall be responsible for the management and control of the McGill Daily through the Editor-in-Chief" (Art. VIII, 6). Opponents of the editor — or of any other chairman of a campus activity — have every right to discuss their grievances at an open meeting, but the meeting has no constitutional right to alter his status. And while motions passed by the Students' Society will receive the attention of the Students' Council, we consider that Council's acceptance of our statement of policy less than two weeks ago indicates that they are not at present ready to replace us. In an editorial October 28 we suggested that a vote against the Editor at an Open Meeting would constitute a vote of non-confidence in the Council which so recently expressed support for him, and might conceivably result in Council's resignation. Our position is unchanged. We consider that we hold our mandate from Council and from no one else; and we intend to continue putting out the paper until Council asks us to stop. Therefore we will not attend today's meeting. We will not support its pretensions to legitimacy by defending our policies before it. The only Daily representative at the meeting will be a reporter.

Council's position with respect to the meeting is quite different. For while nothing written in the constitution makes the SC responsive to the wishes of the student body as expressed at an Open Meeting, in precedent the SC always has been. An analogous situation occurred at Sir George last Wednesday, when a Students' Society vote against entering UGEQ would have forced Council's resignation.

Those who support the Daily have asked whether they should attend the meeting to vote for us. No. In the first place, by voting at the meeting you are implicitly accepting the meeting's right to unseat the editor, should the vote go against him. In the second place, by attending the meeting you are contributing to a quorum and ensuring that the vote will have to be considered by Council.

Delegate's Impressions

Dear Sir,

Since my return from the UGEQ congress last week, I have been hearing several objections to McGill's entry into that organization. I would like to comment on these and give some of my impressions as a delegate, of the congress.

One major objection raised is directed against the Students' Council. It is said that McGill should have been consulted first and that by not doing so Council acted in an undemocratic and unilateral way. My answer to this charge is as follows:

a) The elected representatives of the McGill student body commissioned a study to be made during the summer on the subject of UGEQ. This study was made and submitted to Council.

b) Council (elected by the student body) then decided on the basis of the study, known as the UGEQ Report, to mandate the council president to seek membership in UGEQ.

c) Negotiations were made and conditions acceptable to all parties were agreed upon. McGill did apply for membership and was accepted by an overwhelming majority of votes in UGEQ's assembly.

d) Our membership in UGEQ is soon to go to council for ratification.

Now, there are some very important points to consider. Membership in an organization is effective to the extent that one participates actively with that organization. A pressing need for social change exists here in Quebec and McGill can only help students build a better community by working with UGEQ, the only active and potentially effective student union in Quebec. CUS does not, nor can it, effectively carry on activities in Quebec. This is not being given as a reason for leaving CUS but rather as a reason for joining UGEQ.

There is a good reason why McGill was wise to join UGEQ this year and not wait. UGEQ is young and still in the organizational stages. As a member, McGill contributes meaningfully to UGEQ's growth and development. Had we joined in the future, McGill would probably have had much imposed on her. There would also be the risk that we would not be accepted a year from now. McGill has a vital contribution to make to UGEQ and it is better that we make it now than wait. Finally, I would add that UGEQ presents a challenge to all Quebec students to demonstrate that French and English can work together in the pursuit of common goals.

My impressions of the congress were favourable, but with some reservations. Much of the discussion was semantic and much time was spent discussing procedure. As a result, the congress could not properly complete its work, although it still did accomplish a great deal.

The most important recurring theme at the congress was one that reflects much of the thinking of our own campus: The student should be a constructively active citizen, rather than a passively inactive pupil in school. This is to my mind the essential spirit of UGEQ. I think it is one that we share with other Quebec students and should be the basis for a combined effort in the task of building a better community.

Norman Segalowitz

Vapid Yes-Men

Dear Sir,

So McGill has joined UGEQ; and, perhaps we will have a moderating influence; but, to obtain membership, we have agreed that the Organization will continue as a unilingual body. By agreeing to unilingualism, we have compromised and indeed sacrificed the interests of the English speaking Quebecer; and, indicated that if the provincial government tries to enforce unilingualism in this Province, we will not fight for our rights in a positive and aggressive manner. English speaking Quebecers have become apologetic bending like wax to every criticism or else magnanimously agreeing to demands made upon us when we cannot afford to be magnanimous. We have seemingly lost the ability to differentiate between valid and invalid criticism; in fact, the voice of English speaking Quebecers has become one vapid series of "Yesses", and it is this insipid attitude which has in many cases incurred the disdain of French Canadians. English speaking Quebecers have not matched the burst of energy shown by our French speaking counterparts; and, we have met their purposeful march, not with a goal of our own, but with submissiveness.

The plight of the English speaking Quebecer may be attributed to three main causes: first, an apologetic attitude towards French Canada on the part of English speaking Canada; second, among English speaking Quebecers, it is considered reactionary to protect your rights. French Canadians are not presently plagued with such negative leadership and we fall to their dynamism; like wheat to a sickle; third, the student body of English speaking Quebec is wasting much of its energy by joining the fashionable protests (Viet Nam and no tuition fees), while its rights are being pulled out from under its idealistic feet.

However, this unhappy trend may be reversed: by giving support to McGill, which is the cornerstone of the English speaking community in the Province of Quebec; by realizing that our University must remain financially independent of the Quebec provincial government, which in many different ways has shown itself opposed to the influence of English speaking Quebecers in this Province; and most important of all, by caring enough to make our voice heard, thunderously if necessary in the protection of our rights and heritage, for we are over one million people with a population greater than that of either Manitoba or Saskatchewan; and yet, we have no voice.

Cold War strategies in Africa and Asia will be examined here at the ninth annual McGill Conference on World Affairs, to be held November 10 to 13.

Some 150 delegates representing universities and colleges across the U.S. and Canada will attend the conference whose general theme is entitled: "New Dimensions of War and Peace: Experiences of the Afro-Asian Theatre."

Chairman David Kauffman says about 50 institutions are sending delegates. Keynote addresses are being given throughout the four day sessions by a distinguished group of scholars and statesmen.

Keynote speakers

Dr. Lucian Pye, a specialist on the politics of the developing areas at the Massachusetts Instute of Technology, will deliver the opening address "Roots of Instability", on Nov. 10 at 8:15 pm in Redpath Hall.

JAMES M. MINIFIE

On Thursday, Nov. 11, Harvard professor and U.S. defence consultant Samuel P. Huntington will speak on "Political Violence and Social Change" at 2:30 pm in Redpath Hall.

At 8:15 pm, two leading experts on Asian communism will discuss Sino-Soviet designs in the underdeveloped nations in Afro-Asia. They are John Kautsky, political science professor at Washington University, Saint Louis, and MIT professor and author of the Sino-Soviet Rift, William Griffith.

A panel discussion Friday night, Nov. 12, at 8 pm, in the Stephen Leacock Building, consisting of three prominent observers of the international scene, will consider the topic, "The West and Afro-Asian Revolutions." Participating will be Johns Hopkins professor Charles Burton Marshall, Prof. Rupert Emerson, of Harvard, a prolific writer on imperialism, and veteran journalist and broadcaster James M. Minifie, Washington correspondent of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

The final address will be given by Lincoln Bloomfield, director of the arms control project at MIT. He will speak on "The Future of International Peace-keeping" in Redpath Hall, Saturday, Nov. 13, at 2 pm. The director of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, John Holmes, will be guest speaker at the closing banquet.

Afro-Asia trouble spot

The McGill Conference on World Affairs began in 1957, with the aim of understanding the evolution of the international scene through the participation of students and faculty from Canadian and American universities. Past speakers have included Prime Minister Pearson, Viscount Amory, Hon. Paul Martin, Max Lerner, and Dr. Quincy Wright.

This year, leading political analysts will examine the political, economic, and cultural causes of instability in the developing countries of Africa and Asia. Various manifestations of political violence such as guerrilla warfare, coup d'état, and counter-insurgency will be surveyed.

Objectives of Western and Sino-Soviet strategists in Africa and Asia are to be discussed as well. The student and general public are invited to most sessions of the conference except for the working sessions of the delegates and the closing banquet.

Instability in Afro-Asia

This year's effort by the World Affairs Conference to focus attention on Afro-Asia, the chief area of international instability today, points to the growing recognition of that area as fertile ground for Western and communist extension.

The United States is irrevocably committed in South Vietnam to stem the advance of the communist-backed Viet Cong. In Thailand, Japan, the Philippines, India and Pakistan, and the Middle East, the US has staked its national interest and honour. It has drawn a "cordon sanitaire" around the People's Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics through the military pacts of SEATO, CENTO, and NATO. In Africa, the US and Britain are supporting anti-communist regimes, but regard the whole continent as unstable and ripe for the militant communism expressed by the Chinese.

Chinese militant

Soviet designs in Afro-Asia are being offset by the Chinese who identify more closely with the developing nations because of their imperialist past and revolutionary successes at home and abroad. The Soviets are losing the ideological argument over the nature of communism by their "secret collaboration" and

"sell-out" to the US alleged by the Chinese Politburo. On a campaign of racism and "have-notism" the Chinese have succeeded in isolating the Soviet Union from revolutionary struggles in Latin America, Asia, and Africa.

Chinese foreign policy objectives are concentrated chiefly in South-East Asia, the traditional vassal and tributary states of the mandarin empire under the Ching dynasty. Viet Nam, and South-East Asia are to China as Latin America is to the United States. The danger here is the possible Chinese entrance into the Viet Nam conflict through hope of victory, or fear of attack on Chinese soil.

In South Asia, recent Chinese manoeuvres along the Tibetan-Sikkim frontier with India have tested the strength of the Indian government and Soviet willingness to support Chinese incursions. And along the Sino-Soviet borders, continual flare-ups in Shinkiang and Russian Turkestan bear warfare potential.

Chinese foreign policy in Africa is limited because of American and Soviet competition through foreign aid. But in Burundi, General Kan Me was successful in supporting Congolese rebels against the Tshombe régime. Ghana and Mali, as well as the United Arab Republic, support the Chinese brand of political success. This was affirmed by last summer's visit to Africa of Chinese Premier Chou en-Lai. And in Tanzania, and Kenya, where Chief Minister Oginga Odinga is openly pro-Peking, the Chinese enjoy considerable influence.

Recent diplomatic losses at the postponed Afro-Asian summit in Algiers and the untimely abortive coup in Indonesia, blamed on the

WILLIAM GRIFFITH

Parti Komunisme Indonesiensi (PKI), have revived neutralist claims that China is a "paper tiger."

Cities and countryside

But the Chinese are confident of applying their revolutionary model, expounded by Mao Tse-tung in 1932, that success depends on encircling the cities from revolutionary bases in the countryside. This was given a new twist by Defence Minister Lin Biao in September, when he wrote in Ren min Rih bao: "Taking the entire globe, if North America and Western Europe can be described as the cities of the world, then Asia, Africa, and Latin America constitute the rural areas."

The only solution in the beleaguered battleground of Afro-Asia is a return to the 1954 Geneva accords and the establishment of United Nations peace-keeping forces in Viet Nam as in the Congo, to act as a stabilising force. The portentous events shaping up in Afro-Asia will be systematically studied by the McGill Conference on World Affairs, one of the most important to take place.

Indians win fifth straight; overpower Loyola 29-8

The playoff-bound Indians won their fifth in a row Saturday, coming from behind to trample the Loyola Warriors 29-8.

The Tribe started the game with overconfidence in their heads and lead in their feet. Loyola, however, had come to play and as a result, the end of the first quarter found the Tribe on the short end of a 7-0 count.

Five minutes into the second quarter, Rich Mash put the Indians back into the game with a sensational 50-yard punt return for a TD. Robin McNeil passed to Ken Sutherland for the convert: Loyola 7; Indians 7. At this point, the Tribesmen began to give serious consideration to the idea of playing football. Quarterback McNeil moved the team 53 yards, capping the drive with a short TD pass to Roger Thivierge. The halftime score was Indians 13; Loyola 7.

Tribe comes alive

Indians were lucky to come out of the first half ahead. Loyola's great outside speed had caught the Tribe defence napping on several occasions and the Warriors should have scored more than seven points.

The Indians got off to a shaky start in the second half. On their first sequence of plays the Warriors moved to the Tribe's two yard line where a great goal-line stand held them out. On their next sequence, they moved to the one and promptly fumbled, and Tribe defender Charley these reasons he concluded that the Cambodian people are loyal to their ruler.

Although democratic institutions in the country are unimpressive, Professor Willmott said that political knowledge there was probably rising more quickly than in most other places in the world.

He was especially impressed with the institution of two annual people's conventions, at which any citizen can question government leaders.

Nims alertly recovered in the end zone, holding Loyola to a single.

At the beginning of the fourth quarter, leading 13-8, the Tribe came alive. On the first play of the quarter, McNeil lateralled to Ted Dufresne who scampered 21 yards to paydirt. After Mike Kearns booted a single, Thivierge rounded out the scoring, grabbing a McNeil pass for a sensational 42-yard TD.

McNeil brilliant

The Warriors adhered strictly to their game plan: they scratched, they kicked, they punched and they lost. At one point, a Loyola defender gave vent to his frustration by throwing a punch at Indian tackle Dick Butler. The game was still close at the time and Butler, one of the most valuable linemen of the team, wisely decided not to retaliate. The referee rewarded this act by ejecting both Butler and the Loyola player from the game.

Despite these unusual defensive tactics, the Tribe offence had a field day. Roger Thivierge, a sensation all day on kickoff and punt returns, caught three passes for 84 yards and two TDs. Ted Dufresne caught a pass for 40 yards and rushed for 64 yards.

But it was quarterback Robin McNeil who really stole the show. Maintaining his poise throughout the game, McNeil completed 13 out of 20 passes for 209 yards. McNeil never panicked in the face of a Loyola rush. He found the defensive weaknesses and exploited them, tearing Loyola to shreds.

On defence Mike Butler played a strong game, as did Mike Kearns, Mike Roberts, Brian Stein and Larry Fenske.

Ready for playoff

Coach Ken Bellemare said, "We still need a bit of work but we'll be ready for U de M." If Ralph Loader, who played with a sore arm, can return to form and if players like Rich Mash, a sensation on punt returns, can continue their fine play, the Indians should bring McGill its first football championship in many moons.

Indians — comeback of year

The junior varsity Indians have come a long way since the beginning of the season. After losing their first two clashes by huge scores, the "Tribe" has bounced back and will ride the crest of their present five-game win streak into Molson Stadium Friday in the championship playoff against University of Montreal.

Fans watching the Tribe in its first two games would have been slightly less than impressed as the McGill squad lost by 71-7 and 52-0 scores to University of Ottawa and the U. of M.

OQAA soccer

Blues nip Redmen

by LESLIE BORSHY

On Saturday morning the soccer Redmen lost their second game of the year to the University of Toronto Blues. Although the score was 4-1, Redmen played a fine game and with a few big breaks they could have won it.

Toronto, champions in the Western division of the OQAA, pressed from the beginning and halfway through the first half they scored as Sappelsa got a half step on the Redman defender and drilled a hard shot past Don MacFarlane into the corner of the net. The goal fired up the Redmen and they seized control of the ball for the remainder of the first half during which time Garth Elliot scored on a long hard shot.

The second half started out the same as the first with Toronto controlling the play with their pinpoint passing and excellent ball handling. They scored their second goal into an open net when MacFarlane was drawn out to cover another Toronto player. Redmen took over from there and only their ineffectiveness around the Toronto goal prevented them from tying the game. Toronto added their third and fourth goals near the end of the game and the final score was 4-1.

Several Redmen — Sandy Brown and John Draper — distinguished themselves; but the best player on either team was goaler Don MacFarlane. MacFarlane, who didn't play in the last two games and was in the hospital during the last week, was brilliant as he made outstanding saves on the shots directed at him. Although Toronto didn't shoot the ball a lot they did make their shots tough and difficult, most being shot from very close in.

When questioned about this past season Coach Brian Cleary said: "Due to injuries this year we haven't had the same forward line for two consecutive games and because of the tight sixteen game schedule, we haven't been able to practice enough." If MacFarlane's knee gets better and if the team can remedy this year's problems, the Redmen should be able to resume their place at the top of the league standings.

Because they play in two leagues, the season might not be over for the Redmen. If Carleton, the first place team in the OSLIAA, loses their remaining game and the second place team wins theirs it will make it necessary for Carleton to win one more game to win the league championship. This they can do by playing a previously postponed game against the Redmen. Sound confusing? Well, it is!

Win ends five season drought

Ruggermen shut out Blues

A determined McGill Rugger team staved off a late second-half rally Saturday to blank Toronto 6-0. This ended a five-year jinx against Toronto, and also gave McGill its first OQAA win in two seasons.

Throughout the first half, both teams severely tested each other, but could not register any points. The McGill pack, led by Gerry Ratzer, gained enough ball to mount some sustained offensive movements. Fierce tackling by the backs kept the powerful Toronto three-quarter line in check.

As play progressed in the second half, a few tempers began to fray in the tight forward struggle. It was a Toronto infraction 40 yards out from goal that allowed McGill Captain Chris Kissling, to land the first of his two penalties.

Toronto swept back downfield in a series of well-executed plays. But McGill fought back, determined not to lose the initiative.

Another Toronto misdemeanour right in front of their own posts gave Kissling another easy three points.

This meant Toronto had to score twice to win. And score they very nearly did. Twice a man in blue appeared to have crashed his way over, but the Redmen defence was equal to the occasion and held on.

It would be hard to single out any one Redmen player for special mention. Certainly Kissling's first kick gave the team a noticeable lift.

CLUTCH GRAB: Varsity's star end Mike Eben jumps high to latch on to a Bryce Taylor aerial as Redmen's John Jenks is outguessed in Molson Stadium football action Saturday. Blues' pass attack went for 70 yards with eight completions.

"That Howlett is one helluva ballplayer," said Varsity head coach Dalt White. "I think we underestimated this club."

White was asked why he went for the field goal when Blues

'Stangs clinch first with 26-12 win

LONDON, Ont. — The Western Mustangs downed the Queen's Golden Gaels 26-12 Saturday to finish their season as league leaders with a 5-1 record.

Star halfback Art Froese led the 'Stangs with one touchdown, three converts, a field goal and a single for 13 of the Mustangs' 26 points. Halfbacks Rob Campbell and Larry Burridge scored the other Western TDs and Robin Wearing added a single to complete the scoring.

For the Gaels, Gord Penwarden and Heino Lilles scored one major each. Both were unconverted.

Western leads the league with five wins and one loss. Their loss, however, was at the hands of second place Toronto, who, by OQAA rules, is entitled to meet the 'Stangs in a playoff for the Yates Cup.

The game will take place next Saturday in Western's J.W. Little Memorial Stadium.
